An indoor herb garden bestows a beautiful and edible feature to any home. A sunny balcony, patio or even a secure ledge is all that is needed to nurture herbs. Begin with a pot with drainage holes. Choose potting soil that drains well. Select your favorite herbs to grow. Water only when the soil is dry to touch. With a little care and patience, you will soon have a lush and delicious herb garden of your very own.

Basil, mint, rosemary and oregano are delicious and they do very well in potted gardens in high-rise apartments.

air plants

Tillandsias, or air plants, maybe native to the American continents but their popularity here is unquestionable.

No wonder as these plants love our tropical climate and are simple to maintain. These plants don't need soil to thrive and can be hung or attached to any decorative surface.

With numerous species to choose from, air plants come in sizes as small as 5cm to as large as 2 meters in diameter! Some species are also quite colorful and will even flower in the right conditions. They make for highly versatile plants to brighten any interior.

functional beauties

ROSEMARY Rosmarinus officinalis

Native to the Mediterranean region, this highly aromatic herb enhances the taste of meat. In addition to being edible, the herb's aroma and beautiful foliage is a cheerful addition to any home or kitchen.

LEMON GRASS Cymbopogon citrates

Lemon Grass Cymbopogon citrates No stranger to Asian cuisine, lemongrass is a delightful herb that also makes a stunning patio piece. In addition to cooking, the plant emits a natural aromatic scent, and its oils are known to repel mosquitoes too.

ALOE VERA Aloe barbadensis

This quirky succulent is not only beautiful and easy to maintain, it is one of the most functional of houseplants. Its juicy sap has over 200 active compounds. It is no wonder that this plant has been used therapeutically for more than 5000 years.
